CHARITY HORSE SHOW PROVES GREAT SUCCESS

Promoters So Pleased With Results They Plan Another for This Fall

So marked was the success of Atlanta's Charity Horse Show, which came to a close Wednesday after a two-night session, that plans are already on foot to hold another in the autumn. Certain it is that the show will be made annual for the benefit of the Home for Incurables. With several smaller ticket agencies unheard from, more than $800 had been received from the show Thursday morning. As the expenses were less than $150, a neat balance is left for the beneficiary.

A number of well known citizens, including the editors of the three newspapers, will be invited to give the committee their opinions of the efficiency of the department before the show is completed, according to Chairman Ward.

A list of citizens, whose opinions he desired, was recently submitted to the committee by Commissioner Sisson and the committee voted to invite all of them to appear before it.

Some of the citizens will be asked to appear at Thursday night's session and others at sessions which are to follow.

WOULD GIVE BEAVERS 3 MONTHS TO MAKE GOOD

Colonel Paxon's Suggestion Is Given Serious Consideration by Committee

According to Chairman S. A. Ward, the special police investigating committee is giving serious consideration to the suggestion made by Colonel Frederic J. Paxon that the board give Chief J. L. Beavers three months in which to "make good" in the police machine, and to resign if he fails to "make good" in that length of time. While no vote on the suggestion has been taken, Mr. Ward says that the members of the committee were very much impressed by the suggestion.

A number of well known citizens, including the editors of the three newspapers, will be invited to give the committee their opinions of the efficiency of the department before the probe is completed, according to Chairman Ward.

A list of citizens, whose opinions he desired, was recently submitted to the committee by Commissioner Sisson and the committee voted to invite all of them to appear before it.

Some of the citizens will be asked to appear at Thursday night's session and others at sessions which are to follow.

PRESBYTERIANS MEET AT NEWPORT NEWS, VA.

Evangelism Principal Topic of General Assembly—Membership Has Grown

(By Associated Press.)
NEWPORT NEWS, Va., May 20.—The Presbyterian general assembly of the south began today its fifty-fifth annual session with most of the 300 accredited commissioners from 15 churches of fifteen states in attendance. The sessions will continue for ten days.

The convention was opened with devotional exercises followed by a business session at which organization was to be effected with the election of a moderator to succeed Dr. W. L. Martin, president of Davidson college, Rev. W.
McAlexander, of New York, was elected as the probable choice.

Evangelism will form the principal topic of discussion. Reports of the past year, it was said, would show considerable progress in evangelistic work during the year. A gain in membership in the southern Presbyterian church, of 115,000 per cent during the year, will be shown.

The report declares that statistics show the Presbyterians are in the lead of all other religious denominations of the south in the percentage of increase in members for the year, contributions to foreign missions and the amount contributed to the support of retired ministers.

There will be reported to this assembly the election of a new synod during the past year—the synod of West Virginia.
The total number of synods now in the assembly is fifteen; number of Presbyteries is 45; ministers 1,815; churches 8,848; candidates 60; ministry licentiate 28; number of ruling elders 11,661; deacons 11,266. Total number of church members 310,602.

A special train from Atlanta, Ga., arrived here this morning with 100 delegates.

Others came in by regular trains and boats throughout the day.

Two names were heard discussed today as possible successors to the retiring moderator. They were Rev. J. E.
Thacker, D. D., of Norfolk, the assembly moderator, and Rev. Newton Donaldson, of Huntington, W. Va. It was said that in view of the fact that this is known as the "evangelistic assembly," it would be especially fitting to elect Dr. Thacker. Dr. Donaldson is being sought for the position in recognition of the new synod of West Virginia.

Dr. Alexander still is running strongly, however, and will probably lead on the first ballot, it is said.

WILSON VISITS HOMES OF WASHINGTON AND LEE

President on Way Home From New York Stops a While in Virginia

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 20.—The yacht Mayflower, returning from New York with President Wilson and his party, docked at the navy yard here at 6:30
a. m. today. The president was motested to the White House for breakfast.

The yacht remained anchored throughout the night in the Potomac below Washington to give the president and other night on the water before returning to work.

Immediately after breakfast the president went to his study and attacked an accumulation of work. He had no engagements for the day, but expected to be in communication with Secretary
Bryan and other officials.

Captain William E. Luckett, who has piloted the Mayflower for several years on her trips up and down the Potomac, was injured while on his way to Piney Point, to join the yacht last night. His automobile was ditched and he was thrown through the wind shield. His head was cut but he continued to Piney point and boarded the Mayflower and piloted her to the "navy yard" here.

The president expressed his deep regret to Captain Luckett.

The president and his party stopped on their way up the river to go ashore at Washington, Va., to visit the birthplaces of George Washington and Robert E. Lee. The house in which Lee was born still stands but only a monument marks the birthplace of Washington. Folk in that section of Virginia were amazed and overjoyed at the visit of the presidential party.

The president, with Miss Margaret Wilson, Mrs. Howe, his sister, Mrs.
Anna Colman, his niece, Dr. Grayson, and Captain Luckett, went ashore in a flat boat because the launches of the Mayflower were unable to make the landing.

The pilot intended to guide the party to the Lee homestead.

The route led for more than a mile through a dense wood over a narrow path. The party had landed unobserved and no natives were encountered until the Lee homestead was reached.

Pilot Luckett, expert in guiding presidential yachts down the Potomac, although he displayed almost as much knowledge of the countryside, was on the point of getting lost several times but finally the presidential party emerged into a clearing, where nestled the one story, English brick house in which Robert E. Lee was born. It is now occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Stewart and their son, Mrs. Stewart greeted the president and his party warmly.

"My husband's far from this morning and I knew something was going to happen," said she. "Now the president of the United States has come."

It was the first time Mrs. Stewart had seen a president. The president visited the room where General Lee was born and inspected many pieces of colonial furniture. He expressed his deep interest in the place and thanked the Stewarts for their hospitality.

On the return to the Mayflower the president visited the monument marking the birthplace of George Washington.
Congress makes an annual appropriation for its upkeep.

COLUMBUS MAY AGAIN TRY FOR NEW CITY PLAN

Dixon's Address Stirs Fresh
Interest in Commission Government

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
COLUMBUS, Ga., May 20.—Columbus may again try for commission government as the result of the indictment of the old plan of municipal rule by Frank Dixon in an address at the chautauque here last night on "Taking Stock of a Town."

Dixon declared the mayor-council plan had proved a tragic failure, in that it was "based on politics, steeped in politics and cursed by politics." He urged the city manager plan as the best form of the commission idea and his remarks on the subject have caused considerable talk of renewing the efforts in this city to get the new and more progressive form of municipal rule here.

The people of Columbus voted on the question about one year ago and the new plan was lost by a small vote. Under the commission bill, which was passed by the 1913 legislature, the citizens can vote on again by giving the proper notice in advance, and it is likely that a new movement will be started for a change in Columbus.

FORMER SEN. BAILEY AND JUSTICE MCGOW CLASH

Chief Attorney Threatens to Withdraw From Riggs—McAdoo Bank Case

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 19.—Argument in the Riggs bank injunction suit against Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams started off in the district court today with a clash between former Senator Bailey, chief counsel for the bank, and Justice McGowan, who threatened to withdraw from the case and Justice McGowan threatened to refuse to hear the lawyer's argument.

Senator Bailey was arguing for the admissibility of an affidavit disclosing relations between the bank and Lewis Johnson & Co. bankrupt stock brokers.

Justice McGowan insisted to say he had already ruled that it would be admitted.

"Your honor has taken more time than I intended to take for what I intended to say," replied Mr. Bailey.

"Your remarks are highly improper," returned the justice. "Please understand that distinctly. I do not care for any more discussion. Another remark of that kind and some other counsel will argue this case."

Mr. Bailey tossed his papers to the table and turning away replied:

"If the court feels that about it, I will withdraw from this case now."

"Do as you please about that," retorted the judge, "but not making such a mark as this."

Several of the bank's lawyers, surrounded Senator Bailey and after a conference, he said to the court:

"I feel that I owe this court a duty higher than any I owe to myself. Therefore, I will remain and fight this case to the end."

"I feel that I owe a duty to my client," replied Justice McGowan, "and that led me to demand what you have said from my mind."

The argument then proceeded.

SENATOR BAILEY STATED that Justice McGowan's language, denunciated from the bench a story in the morning newspaper, and that he ruled yesterday that Comptroller Williams exceeded his authority in ordering the bank $10,000 for failure to make special reports.

The judge characterized the story as "a deliberate if not malicious misstatement," which he said was on the content of the report.

Mr. Bailey began his argument by contending the controller did not have the power to issue the order.

He referred to Mr. "Interim's" discussion of the facts yesterday as "misleading."

"He did not fairly state a single fact in his argument," he said.

"I do not mean to reflect upon him in any way. I believe his statements were due only to his misfortune."

He said that the defendants had removed by their answers here and by Mr. "Interim's" references to a "pipe line" between the treasury and the Riggs bank and the National City bank.

Mr. Bailey characterized as "political accusations" the charges that the bank had been used for the purpose of "padding" the treasury.

"I never thought political accusations proper to repeat when I was in politics, and I think they should properly be repeated in a court of law. I might as well say that the bank had eliminated the 'pipe line' they have established another from the treasury to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. I do not say so, however. I might as well say there now is a pipe line to the Commercial National bank in Washington, but I will not say so."

The Commercial is headed by a former associate of Comptroller Williams.

Mr. Bailey declared withdrawal of government funds from the Riggs bank was without legal excuse.

Commercial Bank, he said, was not a "bank" but a "trust" and had no right to the funds.

"That we loaned money to officials in the treasury department is true," he said, "but these gentlemen should simply the whole record. If they had looked further they would have seen that we loaned money to men not only in the treasury but at all government departments. If they had looked further again, they would have found that we loaned money to members of Congress."

He said that the bank had been used for the purpose of "padding" the treasury and that the bank had been used for the purpose of "padding" the treasury.

PREACHER SCORES USE OF ARMED MEN AT MINES

Declares Those Who Sent Them Into Coal Fields Should Be Executed

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Asserting the sending of armed forces into the mines of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company during the recent strike was a crime, and advocating execution of those who sent them, Rev. Daniel S. McKelvie, of Sunrise, Wyo., told the industrial relations commission today that the Colorado strikers were justified in resorting to violence.

"The Colorado," said McKelvie, "sent armed anarchy into the mining camps to murder men, women and children, there was nothing left for the strikers but to resort to violent defense. These men were anarchists coming in the guise of authority, and as such, they were to be executed."

STEP IS TAKEN TOWARD NEW PAVING SYSTEM

Proposed Charter Amendment Puts Cost on the Property Owners

A step toward the inauguration of a new paving system for Atlanta was taken Wednesday afternoon when the charter amendment committee voted to recommend an ordinance by Councilman G. W. Smith to require property owners to pay the full cost of pavements, but to allow them to make the payments in ten yearly installments bearing not more than 7 per cent interest.

Under the present system it is required that the city appropriate one-third of the cost of new pavements, and the lack of money in the city treasury to defray their share of the expenses.

To make legal the change of system a charter amendment is required, and the city council committee Wednesday voted to ask the legislature for this amendment.

Another resolution by the committee was to recommend a consideration of the committee, provided for the payment of new assessments in three annual installments.

GEORGIA STATE CLEARING HOUSE TO BE FORMED

Organization Committee Sends Out Formal Notices to the Bank Cashiers

Active steps toward the organization of the Georgia State Clearing House association were taken Thursday when the organization committee sent out formal notices to bank cashiers of the state, in which they are asked to sign membership blanks and return them not later than June 15.

The organization of the association was agreed on tentatively at a meeting of bankers here last fall, when the organization committee was formed. That committee has met frequently since then and now announces that the time is ripe for the formal organization.

The letter points out that the federal reserve bank is offering its members clearing facilities, and that these facilities are being extended.

It is also pointed out that the membership in the association is open to national as well as state banks. As about eighty per cent of the country checks sent to national banks are on state banks, the federal reserve bank cannot clear them, so the necessity of the association for the national as well as the state banks is shown.

The object of the association would be to put checks drawn on state banks on a parity with those drawn on national banks and to expedite the clearing of checks on Georgia banks at the lowest possible cost to members of the association.

The circular letter, concerning certain details, says in part:

"The committee does not think it best at this time to promulgate specific rules for operating the Georgia State Clearing House association other than those general regulations already outlined, for the reason that details for operation must be worked out through actual experience."

"With reference to that section of regulations which provides a guarantee fund for faithful compliance with rules of the association, we would call your attention to the fact that this deposit is not to be made by you until the association is ready to begin business."

"While the tentative organization of this association has been effected by state banks, membership is open to national banks as well, and it is confidently expected that national banks will become members of the association. If national banks in number affiliate with the association they will, as soon as is possible, be given due representation on the board of control."

"The committee believes firmly that organization of the Georgia State Clearing House association is one of the most important moves ever made in the banking system of this country—and is confident that it will be followed by similar organizations, throughout the United States."

Following are the members of the organization committee: J. E. Dunson, chairman; Z. H. Clark, L. R. Farmer, F. W. Clarke, Miller S. Bell, A. P. Coles.

MRS. HIGHT WILL GET HER HUSBAND'S RING
Mr. Emmett Hight's Jewelry Will Be Given Her Without Contest, She Says

There will be no legal fight by Mrs. Carrie Dexton Hight to get possession of the diamond ring and watch belonging to her late husband, Emmett Hight, because the ring and watch will be turned over to her whenever she asks Attorney John Moore for them, said Mrs. Hight Thursday morning.

"Mr. Moore telephoned me Wednesday afternoon that he had these personal possessions of my husband and that he would give them to me whenever I ask for them," said Mrs. Hight.

But, she said, she has not yet found a valuable diamond suit belonging to her husband. A diligent search is being made for this, she said, and she expects to find it.

"I am more than anxious to find this suit so as to give it to my little son, Lawrence, with his father's other personal valuables," said Mrs. Hight. "It was Mr. Hight's wish that Lawrence should have these things."

After returning from Douglasville Wednesday on the special Southern train which she chartered for the funeral of her late husband, Mrs. Hight and little Lawrence went out to their former home at 80 Peachtree Circle, where they were met by Mr. Moore.

Mr. Hight's safe in his Equitable building offices will be opened Saturday afternoon. It is not known whether it will be found, but it is expected $100,000 worth of bonds will be found.

BOND COMMITTEE WILL MEET TO FRAME REPORT

Probably Will Call for Election on Issue of $3,500,000 or $4,000,000

The council bond committee, of which Alderman Albert Thomson is chairman, will meet Thursday afternoon to prepare its report to council, which will likely call for an election to issue bonds in the sum of $3,500,000 or $4,000,000.

A subcommittee to investigate the need for a new high school building and enough new grammar schools to care for the situation for several years. The works department will ask over a million, through the subcommittee assigned to investigate its needs, the city hospital will ask $750,000, and the various other departments will ask that bonds be issued for their permanent improvements to be included in any list that the public is asked to vote upon.

Councilman C. W. Smith will ask the committee and council to provide that in the event a bond issue should be voted that the money be expended by a commission, similar, but larger, than the one, which spent the money voted at the last successful bond election.

Mr. Smith proposes this commission be composed of fifteen men, two members of the common council, one alderman, two representatives of the city at large to be elected by council; two representatives nominated by the federation of labor, a representative of the chamber of commerce, but representative of the Atlanta Clearing House association, one from the Retail Grocers' association, from the real estate board, from the Retail Dry Goods Dealers' association, one representative to be named by the editors of the three newspapers, the mayor and the president of the board of education, as ex-officio members of the commission.

Full Recognition to the Separate Skirt Vogue

Friday we shall show in a display of unusual magnitude the separate skirt is the many phases now fashionable. Not in many seasons have skirts been so lime-lighted as they are right now. Also, not in many seasons has there been such a popular fashion—for there is no denying that women like the shirtwaist and separate skirt idea.

But the point we would score is that we have recognized this vogue and therefore prepared for it with a thoroughness that means much to every woman.

We shall show you tomorrow just how.

Here is an almost infinite variety of skirts, all so fine and so worthy, all so comfortably priced, that it must appeal to every woman.

Wash Skirts
$1.45, $1.95, $2.45 to $5.75

Somehow they get away from the general run of wash skirts—they possess an unmistakable individuality in tailoring, in trimming, in line.

Piques, gabardines, linens, honey-comb skirtings and Palm Beach cloths. Plain tailored styles, with patch pockets, belted effects with cut-in pockets.

And there is one point that we would insist upon. We have these wash skirts—fact is, it should not be limited to the wash skirts—in large sizes as well as the small and medium.

Corduroy Skirts
$3.95 and $5.00

White and colors liked for wear with the new golfine coats—wide and narrow welt corduroy, plain with patch or pouch pockets.

Woolen Skirts

Serges by the score. Chudda cloths that so effectively shed dust. Poplins, soft, nicely draping.

These in black, navy and white, and with black, tan and navy hair stripes. Charming models, yoked effects, plain, shirred at the waist, belted, many with pockets.

Silk Skirts
$5.00, $5.75, $7.95 to $13.50

Faillies, poplins and taffetas. Many very remarkable values. Some of them are distinctly plain, depending upon their superb tailoring for their smartness. Many are shirred at the waist and over the hips. The plaited models are numerous.

A Little Lot of $3.45 Georgette Crepe and Crepe de Chine Blouses Are Marked $2.95

For a Friday Sale. And we have an idea based on experience that those women who, coming early, see these blouses at such a price, will take them quickly. Several styles—with washable satin collar, with self collar to be worn high or low, with buttons and loops down the front. White and flesh Georgette crepe—about every color crepe de chine.

New

Awning Striped Blouses
$2.45

We have been experiencing difficulties in keeping the supply equal to the demand.

Today we have in enough to speak of, to invite you to select from.

Handkerchief Linens, in blue, rose, green and tan—several styles.

New

Silk Sweaters $6.50 to $11.75

Silk and wool fiber that looks so like silk and wears like linen.

They have come into great popularity this spring as a sort of sports coat.

Rich in color—rose, old blue, sand, green, gold and black and white. Some are plain, with pockets, others have wide sashes. Smart, certainly.

Crepe de Chine Blouses $3.45

New models have arrived—the notable features are the use of box plaits and the yoked effects; these in practically every color.

Scores of New Waists at $1.00

Tables piled high with them—all fresh, all crisp and all likable.

White and flesh colored lawns, voiles and barred dimities.

What a Difference There Is in Palm Beach Suits!

Given the same material—and one maker turns out a suit that looks like many others—and another maker evolves such as we shall show Friday!

Such is the advantage that comes of selecting merchandise from those who excel.

We have gathered Palm Beach Suits in wonderful variety, and they are different. Made by men who know how to do things better, they show it in the lines of the skirt, in the placing of belts, the use of plaits, the use of a bit of braid on collars and cuffs.

And yet their prices are but $6.95, $7.50, $8.75 gradually to $15.00.

CREPE DE CHINE

Clamor for Cash

Nothing will satisfy creditors but the cold hard cash.

In times of distress the only recourse we have for raising funds is to sacrifice our merchandise, and since the compulsory stage has now arrived we offer our entire stock—without reserve—for tremendous reductions—FOR CASH.

NOTE THE REDUCTIONS

$15 Woolen Suits $11.65 $25 Woolen Suits $17.65
$18 Woolen Suits $13.65 $30 Woolen Suits $19.65
$20 Woolen Suits $14.65 $40 & $35 Suits $21.65

Palm Beach, Panama, Poplin, Linen and Silk Suits

clearing the tops of the mourning books—a genuine consciousness apparent in every line when even a young and fair-haired and blue-eyed a long black veil, just a fringe of white at the temple, is rayishing to the male heart. It is but an indication of that temperament that when the world was sane brought all the world to Paris.

There is but one thing to do with a Paris girl—

And Frederic? Why Martin, of New York, last spring, said "It's turned, then, stay him." "I can't do that," said the other. "I am a constant than ever in Paris' platory. The hope-ful, the innocent stranger as he walks on the streets, towards with insulting suggestions as to the sort of entertainment he might expect to find in the theatre, really desire. They eliot about the Egoism—must ask the Place de l'Opera and watch each passerby with hungry eyes. Sometimes they spy, at a distance, men endowed with the potentialities of employment. Then they glare at him with a stare of incredulity, or three fingers racing for the victim. But one cannot stay them. They are all veterans of the trenches. They have all been wounded in battle and invalided home. They have wives and children staring on the pavement's edge. They insist on their papers."

the papers upon you. If you read, you are lost. These poor devils are telling the truth. They have fought and they have been invalided home—and very like they have wives and children who are in want, because their profession of other days has become a mockery now. But no one wants to be guided about Paris. If there were tourists here, which there are not, still fewer would want to be guided about Paris. Montmartre is closed by day. The Hill is dark by night. The kind-hearted waiters who once cheerfully short-changed Americans all night long in the Dead Rat and the Collar of Gold are doing their turn in the trenches.

The girls have been sent to their homes by the police.

"But not all have homes," you will object.

These others are sewing bandages for the wounded, and sandbags with which to build trench walls higher, and are repairing the rents made by shot and steel in red and blue garments that had been wanted to adorn festivity of their original hue. We passed one such place—a guide had pirated me—and I looked through the open door. The warm Paris Sun was streaming in upon these vestals of that Infamy War! How they looked at me! They were so young, as they were over their sewing and dabbled and bled—these forefathers that once were rosy, but are now blackened by pinpricks for the passing strangers to sympathize upon.

Another was Paris and Berlin alike.

German capital soldiers are everywhere. They stand at attention at palace doors. They click their heels untiringly as the innumerable officers pass. They wander about sightseeing, in that patient, thorough German way, and they are everywhere. They carry a paper-covered Guide to Berlin. They trudge stolidly through the streets, knapsack on back and gun in hand, going by twos and fours to the train that is taking them back to the front. They march out eagerly to the ringing, muffled military band—did it ever strike you that a ragtime cadence has replaced the profounder melodies of the bygone day in Germany's military music?—with flowers wreathed in their hair, and they march off to the trenches and to die. But one sees few wounded soldiers in relation to the total number. The reverse is the case in Paris.

Here one hardly sees a body of soldiers at all, only on guard duty. But one is continually seeing wounded men. I do not remember ever seeing a soldier who was not wounded. The shops are kept open. Here there are literally scores of them at every turning, or so it seems to me. I have not fathomed the reason. Perhaps the shops are kept out of the way of the occasional fanatic effort of the mob of the people. Perhaps the German doctors have in reality almost done away with amputations, as they did in the First World War.

"Perhaps a Zeppelin is coming," said one shopkeeper this morning.

The streets had ceased for a time. Men and women had backed themselves against buildings and were peering upward toward the sky. There was a faint glow in the sky, but it was not there in the early morning light. We could hear the humming of its motor, it had flown so low. And above it, so high that it seemed the sky could find the limit of its flight, a single airplane could find the limit of its flight. It had started the way you could find the biplanes soaring above the city. They were a part of that constant guard against the bomb-throwing German planes.

The girl in the shop door shook her head.

"No such luck," said she. "No show today." For Paris looks on Zeppelins as devices especially sent to annoy and awe her. Her memory is full of the Zeppelin and the bomb-dropping aeroplanes that have cost lives in Paris. But all testimony agrees that after the first experience Paris hasn't been even the slightest bit afraid. At the moment of alarm all Paris has rushed out into the streets "to see the show" instead of taking to the cellars according to the custom of the English. The reason is that the cause of the occasional invasions from the sky is no less angry, down in her bright heart, but she refuses to worry. She is gallant and buoyant and almost gay.

POOTED MAN

feet, such as rising on the hall of the foot and looking backward and forward, resting the weight of the body on the outside of the foot.

"In from two weeks to a month the trouble with fallen arches was cured."

"That final sentence we believe will enlist the attention of thousands of who are so unfortunate as not to enjoy the immediate benefits of Prof. Sahalane's supervision. They will be enlightened, too, by the abolition of that requirement of police discipline which compels men to stand at attention and walk to town pointing. The professor.

"Our men may now walk Indian fashion, pikeon tood or goose step, for all I shall do to stop them".

The goose step is a magnificent monument of militarism; it is essentially German; for all we know it may be unneutral. But Indian fashion is a good deal better, in placing the feet. It involves no outward thrust to the right or left, and no adjustment of muscular alignment. It is natural, the practice of a people who were athletes and all the time. It is easy, and costs nothing, and if, with the moderate exercises devised by the professor, it will uplift farther the spirit, I shall expect to see it fashionable, and a sum total of good will be accomplished through the publication of the Cabalanian system.

Prof. Cabalan, as we understand the matter, asks no fee from patients who follow his advice. But those who are benefited by it may testify their gratitude by purchasing his excellent book on how a policeman should act; a work not less interesting to ordinary citizens than to patrolmen and their superiors, and, to the Hun's mind, the best work on the subject that has been produced in this country.—New York Sun.

One road leads to London,
One road leads to Wales,
My road leads me seawards
To the white dipping sails.
One road leads to the river,
As it goes singing slow;
My road leads to the shipping,

Where the bronzed sailors go,
Leads me, lures me, calls me,
To salt green tossing sea;
A road without earth's road-dust
Is the right road for me.
A wet road heaving, shining,
And wild with sea gulls' cries,
A mad salt sea wind blowing
The salt spray in my eyes.

An Amazing Suit Sale at 14.48

"IT'S foolish to sell these suits at $14.48," protested the suit chief, "why former prices are two and three times that." "Former prices have ceased to exist," answered the merchandise manager, "we must do something much out-of-the-ordinary for this sale, and these suits will do the trick."
—There's the reason for the foolish little price of $14.48 on these suits and the idea behind it.

News of Women and Society

To Mrs. Palmer

A pleasant occasion of Thursday at the Little White Golf club was the luncheon at which Mrs. Charles A. Conklin entertained the members of her bridge club in compliment to Mrs. Louise Black, guest of Washington City, the guest of Mrs. William P. Hill.

Mrs. Crumley Gives

Tea for Bride Elect

Mrs. Robert Crumley entertained delightfully at tea Thursday afternoon, at her home on Courtland avenue, in compliment to Miss Louise Black who has been honor guest at a series of parties prior to her marriage the middle of June to John McDougall.

Basket filled with double basket poppies adorned the reception hall and in the dining room were Mrs. Henry J. Franklin poured tea, the prettily appointed table had centerpiece of glowing pink roses artistically arranged in a basket. The hall was caught with a flurry bow of pink tulle and the silver candlesticks were shaded with pink silk.

The attractive honor guest wore a stunning lingerie model and Mrs. Black was gowned in white tulle, and lace.

Little Miss Caroline Crumley, the hostess' lovely young daughter, wore a girlish frock of red lace finished with pink ribbon sash and French bows.

Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Nellie W. Thomas, Mrs. John B. Horne, Mrs. A. D. Adair, Jr., and Miss Ada Alexander.

To Mrs. Roddey

Miss Louise Parker was hostess at luncheon Thursday at her home on East Fourteenth street in compliment to Mrs. Charles Roddey, a recent bride.

The central decoration of the luncheon table was a crystal bowl of crimson rambler roses and the places of the guests were indicated by small baskets of roses the handles of which were adorned with fluttering amongst the blossoms were many bright red butterflies.

Anna Pavlova's Daily Lesson In Dancing New Social Steps

Pavlova illustrating a new step in walk-around.

BY ANNA PAVLOVA.

ARTICLE IX.

In the walk-around each dancer now moves without holding the hands of the partner. Save for the touching of elbows, at points in the dance, there is absolute independence. The complete salutation, which closes figure two, brings the partners face to face, ready for the one I am about to explain.

This third figure requires that the dancers move in a compass in which the lady at the close shall be at the spot from which they started. The counts run from "sixteen" to "thirteen" the first four consisting of four steps taken by each dancer on alternate feet. The next four counts being used for a salutation similar to the one just explained in the preceding article.

Alternate steps are once again used on the third group of four counts and on the last four counts the dancers make their second salutation (this time on two instead of four counts) after which the partners take two steps toward each other to continue the dance with the fourth figure.

The lady, placing both hands on her hips, starts her first part of the walk-around, stepping first with the right foot, then the left, the right again on the fourth count the left. Steps exactly like those of the lady are taken by the cavalier, he using the right foot when she uses hers and making his salutation with the knee of his right leg bent and the left leg held as straight as possible. Each dancer should take steps averaging seven to nine inches each, and be careful to raise the foot every time and place it in a steady manner on the floor, touching the ball of the slipper or dancing pump only.

On the counts of "five" and "six" the lady and her cavalier swing to their right and execute the salutation, rising again the "seven" and "eight" counts into position to finish the walk-around. Counts "nine" to "twelve" inclusive are utilized by steps the exact duplicates of those taken on the opening four counts of the figure, and on "thirteen" and "fourteen" the dancers complete their second salutation which is less formal and not quite as deep.

On counts "fifteen" and "sixteen" the lady and her cavalier take two steps toward each other, the lady raising her right hand so it may be grasped by her cavalier in his right preparatory to the lady's making a complete turn to her left under her own and her partner's arms, which I will write about in my next article.

"MY HEALTH IS PERFECT"

So Says a North Carolina Lady In Telling What She Owes to Cardui, the Woman's Tonic.

Mr. Alby, N. C.—Mrs. Ada Hill, of this place, says: "About six years ago I got in very bad health. I suffered terrible pains in my abdomen and back. I dreaded to see it set. For I suffered such agony. No one except myself will ever know how badly I suffered. The doctor said I was suffering as a result of the menopause.

As nothing gave me any relief, I asked the doctor if I hadn't better try Cardui. He said, 'It might help you, and told my husband to get me a bottle. At this time I was so weak I could not lift my head, and my voice was so weak, people had to lean towards the bed to hear what I said. I looked so bad and had such a dark color that I looked like a dead woman, and my relatives thought I would never get up again.

I took one bottle of Cardui and it relieved the pain and suffering so much that my husband got another bottle, and that improved me still more. I began to strengthen and gradually got well. I have now had better health for six years than I ever had in all my life. I have taken no medicine since, and my health is perfect.

Cardui is the finest medicine a woman could use.

Try it. At drugists.—(A-107)

Little Stories For Bedtime

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Farmer Brown's boy watched a family fishing party at the little pool in the Laughing Brook deep in the Green Forest until it moved on to the next pool. Then he remembered his own fishing, and the fat trout he had promised to take home. "I understand now why I haven't had a bite," he chuckled. "Little Joe Otter and his family come to what they're caught, for the fun of seeing those youngsters get their first lesson in fishing is worth more to me than the fish would have been. But I can't allow them to get all the fish. I could frighten them away, but I don't want to do that. No, sir! I don't want to make them afraid of me. I know what I'll do. I'll circle round through the woods and get a head of them."

So Farmer Brown's boy crept in a half circle through the Green Forest until he came more reached the Laughing Brook, this time at a place where he felt sure that he was ahead of the Otter fishing party. In a minute he was sure of it, for something was tugging at his line, and when with a sharp jerk he pulled out a silver-speckled trout Farmer Brown's boy forgot all about everything else.

Now it just happened that that very same Old Man Coyote had taken it into his head that he would visit the Laughing Brook and see what was going on there. It may be that back in that shrewd head of his there was an idea that there might be some helpless young babies or headstrong and careless young who would furnish him with a tender and easily gotten breakfast. Anyway, he was going up the Laughing Brook as Farmer Brown's boy was fishing down the Laughing Brook, and so they met. Farmer Brown's boy didn't know this, however. He didn't know a thing about it. You see he was so intent on fishing that he had no eyes for anything but the water and his line where it entered it. So he didn't see Old Man Coyote at all. But Old Man Coyote saw him. He lifted his lips from his long strong teeth, a most unpleasant way as he sneaked past through the brush. "Probably he's frightened everything along the brook," grumbled Old Man Coyote bitterly as he went on his way up the Laughing Brook.

He had gone but a very little time when his sharp ears caught the sound of a splash in a little eddy in the water. Instantly he dropped flat on his stomach and began to crawl forward on inch at a time, his eyes blinking with eagerness, his sharp ears cocked forward. Presently he saw Little Joe Otter and Mrs. Joe swimming and a great disappointment swept over him. He knew that they were far too smart to be caught by him, and even if they had not been he would have had no mind to feel their sharp teeth when other food was to be obtained without having to fight for it.

Right at that moment he saw the two Otter children. All his disappointment was forgotten and the eager look returned to his eyes. He couldn't imagine anything more to his liking than to see the two children and then to see him hick his lips hungry. Inch by inch he crept nearer. One of the little Otters climbed up on the bank almost in front of him. Old Man Coyote wriggled nearer. Then he brought his head under him read for a quick jump, and waited. He wanted that young Otter, but he was far too crafty to risk a fight with Little Joe and Mrs. Joe unless he had to. So he waited. They waited so far and he could catch up when he got ready. He rather liked the idea of being left alone. It made him feel more independent. There was nothing to fear there, anyway. He sat perfectly still and watched the others disappear around a little turn in the Laughing Brook.

GEORGIA PYTHIANS GIVE WILSON INDOREMENT

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 20.—The Georgia grand lodge, Knights of Pythias, telegraphed President Wilson, indorsing his action "in the present crisis of our national life" and assuring him of its support in his "endeavor to maintain the principles of humanity and international justice." Hope was expressed that the president's efforts to preserve "peace, with honor," would prevail.

When they were out of sight he chuckled. He thought himself very smart. A very tiny noise behind him, the rustle of a leaf, caused him to turn his head. He had just time to get a glimpse of three yellow eyes and gleaming teeth, and then the big paws of Old Man Coyote landed on him.

CITY AND POWER CO. MAY GO TO COURTS

Refuses to Replace "T" Rails on Double Tracks on Grant Street

The Georgia Railway and Power company, through President Frank A. Wright, has declined to replace the "T" rails on its double tracks on Grant street with grooved rails, as it was directed to do by a recent city ordinance calling for a pavement of that thoroughfare with wood blocks.

While Chief of Construction Nym Hurt, to whom President Wright's letter was directed, is one of the city council members, express the opinion that the city will go to the courts with the power company to change the clause of the ordinance.

Alderman Albert Thomson, at whose instigation the ordinance for Grant street was amended to include the order to the power company to put down grooved tracks, declared that a wood block pavement on a street where there are "T" rail tracks is a waste of money.

The power company gives the following reasons for its refusal to comply with the city's directions:

The company's share in the paving cost alone would be $9,000—exactly half the total cost, three times as much as the city's share, one and a half times as much as the share of the property owners on both sides together.

The estimated additional expense of changing the tracks would be $11,000, making the total cost to the company $20,000 for paving and change of tracks. The company sets forth that it cannot afford this heavy expense because its revenues "are being materially reduced due to general conditions of the street railway business."

It should not be "put to an issue which it cannot well bear and which is unnecessary."

The company's position is that the laying of a wood block pavement does not necessitate new tracks; that the present tracks will not be injured by the wood blocks and that the existing tracks can be laid against the existing tracks, and make a good pavement.

However, if the contractors will not or cannot agree to this, the company's position is that under existing conditions wood block is not a proper pavement for the street, and the most expensive pavement; that the street traffic does not warrant it and a cheaper form of pavement would serve better.

The company takes the position further that the city has overstepped a contract made in 1909 by the city code of 1909 the city had the express power to require the street railway companies to rebuild their tracks wherever the mayor and general council saw fit to decree the change.

Under the contract made in 1909, when the traction companies were consolidated into the Georgia Railway and Electric company, the city agreed not to preserve or enforce that contract with reference to the Georgia Railway and Electric company or its successors.

The ordinance, introduced by Alderman Thomson, and passed last week, requires the power company, whenever a permanent pavement is laid on a street, where it has tracks, to lay the foundation for its tracks in concrete, in existing ordinance requires a concrete base for tracks; where an asphalt pavement is laid, the power company must lay a concrete base.

AMERICAN ACCUSED AS SPY COMMITS SUICIDE

Anton Kuiperle Hangs Himself in London Prison During His Trial

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, May 20.—Anton Kuiperle, who claimed to be an American citizen, and who lived in Brooklyn, and who has been in trial charged with giving military information to the enemies of Great Britain, committed suicide last night in the Brixton prison. He is reported to have hanged himself.

When court opened this morning for resumption of the trial the attorney general, Lord Reading, announced the death of the prisoner to the judges.

"Since the rise of this court last night," the attorney general said, "this man Kuiperle has committed suicide in Brixton prison. He was in a special observation cell under practically continuous observation, but during one of the short intervals he seized the opportunity of taking his own life."

Chief Warder Cook, who is in charge of the prison, testified that last night the night patrol officer, a woman named Perry, came to him and said: "I can't see the prisoner."

Warden Cook immediately arose and opening the cell door he found the prisoner hanging by the neck from a ventilator in a corridor behind the door. He had used a silk scarf to commit suicide and he was hanging clear of the floor.

Warden Cook produced the state on which the prisoner had written his message. His communication followed: "To Whom It May Concern: My name is Kuiperle, I was born in 1888, in Baden, I am a soldier with a rank I do not desire to mention. I can say I have had a fair time but a few days before he left America. He remained in the army and I have the only hands. I have fought many a battle and write to read the only letter for me. I would prefer death by shooting, but I do not wish to ascend the scaffold as there the prisoners are a mass of men and women. I am not dying at my fate, but as a soldier, I am a man and a patriot. I ask you kindly that my name, Anton Kuiperle, be notified of my death."

What I do desire to see for my country, I express my thanks, and may the Republic give you all. Yours truly, (Signed) "ANTON KUIPERLE."

On the other side of the sheet he had written "I was born June 11, 1882."

Women and children work in the fields, and as most of the farms are small, they are cultivating them right along. Germany is living like a man with the fever of itself. And it will be many, many months before she uses all her resources."

There is no internal trouble in Germany, says Mr. Howard, the country is united. This impressed him more than anything else. And they are certain as they are that the sun rises that they will win the war.

"Last fall," said Mr. Howard, "Germany was friendly toward the United States, they thought the country would sympathize with them. They have found out different since. When I left Germany the first of April the people were bitter toward us. Americans in Berlin made it a practice not to talk to me. They were afraid they would be arrested. There was a fortune in it. I don't understand Germany. There are no Americans in Germany."

Mr. Howard said that the people in America, however Germany's hate is all toward England. Russia they do not like. France they claim to fear. Italy they like the war; they will hate Italy.

MINERS BY THOUSANDS ARE PUT BACK TO WORK

Shortage of Men in Pittsburgh District May Follow Coal Boom

PITTSBURGH, May 20.—Resumption of lake coal shipments and increased consumption of coal by industries in this section have resulted in renewed activity in mining operations in the Pittsburgh district. Three-fourths of the miners in this district, estimated at about 27,000, have been recalled to work after months of idleness and it is expected this number will be increased soon. Coal operators believe that by June 1, lake coal shipments will be on practically in full, should coal operations grow much heavier, however, a shortage of men for the mines is feared.
